others in just as destitute circumstances.

The federal government has appropriated a war vessel to carry the gift cargo to Europe. It will port from Brooklyn on Nov. 10.

Today local managers of the Wells-Fargo and the American Express companies, received notification that arrangements had been completed by which each respective corporation would transport free of all express charges, all Christmas ship gifts, to Brooklyn.

Shipments in each case must be marked, "Christmas Gifts for the Children of Europe." The contents of the package must be listed on the exterior of the bundle and the name and address of the sender also inscribed.

No concentrated public effort to help along the cause has been attempted in Janesville. Neither is any society or charitable organization known to have ready anything to send.

Yesterday a lady called at the Gazette to get information regarding the sending of her gifts, but aside from this there appears to be nothing else done along this particular line.

HALLOWE'EN "JOKERS" ARE GIVEN WARNING

Chief of Police Champion Issues Warning Against Gangs Destroying Property Saturday Night.

Chief of Police Champion this morning stated that the lid would be clamped down tight Saturday night on Halloween pranks that are of a disorderly or malicious nature. As the Eve of All Saints falls on Saturday, the police will be handicapped to some extent by the necessary policing of the business district, and an extra number of special officers will be employed by the department.

The residents are requested to give the authorities all the aid possible in caring for property that would likely prove an object of attack by mischief-makers who seem to delight yearly in upsetting the city and rearranging property. Loose gates, buggies, wagons, and small outbuildings, if uncared for or unguarded, will probably be found missing in the morning.

You Can't Find A Pimple

AFTER USING STUART'S CALCIUM WAFERS ONLY SEVEN DAYS, PIMPLES SIMPLY DISAPPEAR.

The quick action of Stuart's Calcium Wafers cannot be described. One must see the effect on the skin after only one or two days.

They reach down into the blood, clean it as one does dirty linen, throw off all impurities in a natural way and thus the blood does not fill the skin with eruptions and discoloredations in its attempt to get rid of injurious waste.

"If You Could Have Seen the Pimple I Used to Have. Ugh! The Nasty Thing!"

The chief charm of Stuart's Calcium Wafers rests in their ability to very rapidly cleanse the blood of its impurities.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers have not a particle of poison in them. They are free from mercury, biting drugs or venomous opiates. This is absolutely guaranteed. They cannot do any harm, but they always do good—good that you can see in the mirror before your own eyes a few days after.

Don't be any longer humiliated by having a splotchy face. Don't have strangers stare at you, or allow your friends to be ashamed of you because of your face.

Your blood makes you what you are. The men and women who forge ahead are those with pure blood and pure faces.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers will make you happy because your face will be a welcome sight not only to yourself when you look into the glass, but to everybody else who knows you and talks to you.

We want to prove to you that Stuart's Calcium Wafers are beyond doubt the best and quickest blood and skin purifier in the world and the surest, quickest way to do this is to tell you that thousands of men and women, boys and girls have used them for all manner of impure blood conditions and skin troubles. Go to your druggist this very day and buy a box, price 50c. A small sample package will be mailed free to anyone who will address F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

THREE BIG CONTESTS SCHEDULED SATURDAY

SECOND TEST OF INTERSECTIONAL FOOTBALL IN HARVARD-MICHIGAN GAME.

HARVARD VS. MICHIGAN

street in West Centers on Outcome of Wisconsin-Chicago and Illinois-Minnesota Conference Struggle.

By Strikes.

On Saturday the outcome of three big games, on which the eyes of the football world will be turned, will be greatly to unravel the football supremacy question and carry down the scales of championship calumny. The biggest struggle of the day will be the clash between Harvard and Michigan, representing the intersectional types of football, at Cambridge. While the east and west are settling their dispute—the west will be equally interested in the conflicts between Chicago and Wisconsin, two undefeated conference rivals, at Madison and the outcome of the Minnesota-Illinois game at Minneapolis. Both of these games will settle the hopes of the losers for conference honors, leaving the winners for the main lot it is certain—as certain as football—that the winner of these games will meet for the gridiron crown of the west.

In the east, with the exception of the Harvard-Michigan game and the Princeton-Washington game, there are no games scheduled that will arouse unusual interest. Brown plays Vermont, Carleton meets Syracuse, who put the crimp into Michigan last Saturday. Cornell should have an easy time with Holy Cross and Dartmouth looks like a winner over Amherst. Yale will have a chance to recuperate after a strenuous game at Colgate, who last year gave the Yale Bull Dog's tail an awful twist, which awoke the Blue athletic officials to the need of a cleaning house in their coaching system. The Blue men seek revenge for that defeat, Saturday.

Change Play. It appears that the day is past when the larger universities and colleges can expect to go through a football season undefeated because of increased football efficiency in the smaller school. The truth is coming to light that it is not open football entirely that has upset "dope" on games but a variegated attack. Coaches are now devoting time to the strategic possibilities of the game working the various problems down to a science. The defeated Notre Dame through a constantly changing offense "springing" forward passes, end runs—long and off tackle plunges—double and triple passes, split interference with the plunging mixed in thoroughly. The type of the team depends much on this attack for the Rugby passing requires an unlimited amount of space in the backfield. The strength of many of the teams has not been uncovered. Harvard in two games has not presented the same lineup but against Yost's aggression, Hardwick, Mahan, Logan, and prob-how the first team squad has team work and offensive plays drilled into them. Washington and Jefferson and Penn. state have made rapid progress in registering victories, holding or defeating the teams expected to go by Pennock—the most feared men in college football, will attempt to wreck the western invasion, and they but fail to succeed in the Syracuse score can be counted for anything.

Michigan's attack will be directed by Hymel, the brains of Yost on the field in play, the reports show the westerners lack the leading offense after their last week's defeat.

Western games. Janesville football followers who cannot attend the game at Madison will be interested in the Harvard-Michigan struggle which has been picked by many experts as the "big one" of the season. The Harvard team is superior. Just the Harvard team will have a night on their hands as Michigan will depend on whether the Harvard team will be able to hold Russell, Stagg's stellar quarterback, who has won two of our best college games by bringing running. Russell has been thoroughly schooled in "mixing his dope" and Stagg always equips the Maroons with the latest in football.

Michigan has been coming strong in her recent games making the score 7 to 0—against Iowa, as did the Maroons. The Harvard team even made a better showing against Iowa than did Chicago. Illinois has been picked by many experts as the "big one" of the season. Coach Zuppke's eleven is the favorite in the game but the Illinois team will be forced to show their mettle to defeat the Gophers and it is not expected to be a comfortable score.

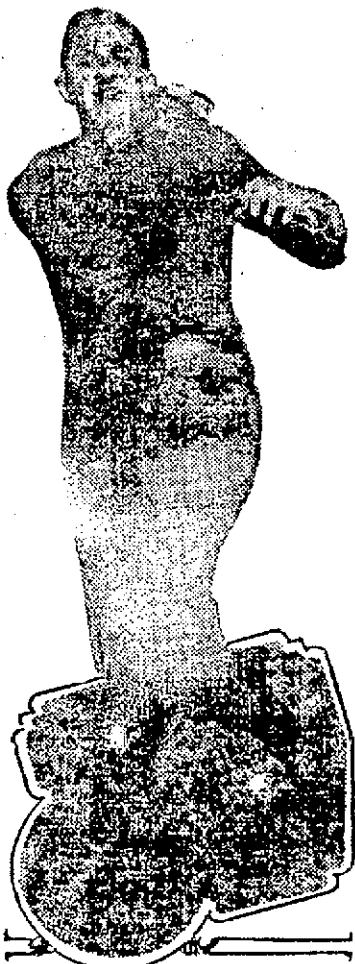

Nebraska, by defeating the Michigan Aggies, has taken the front and the Cornhuskers will, Saturday. The Nebraska eleven looks strong enough to be able to hear on equal terms with any team in the west. A better line will be possible on them on the outcome of the Iowa game.

Purdue will obtain the much needed rest while Notre Dame meets Haskell. Marquette will meet the Milwaukee team which will mean Lawrence will "play" as the Milwaukee eleven has not been successful in any important game and has not improved to any great extent. Carroll will have a hard fight with Lake Forest at Waukegan. Two Janesville boys will appear in this game and the gridiron followers here look for a Carroll victory. Last year's dropped an unexpected game to Monmouth last Saturday but were rated as the strongest eleven in the little five conference. The Beloit should meet an obstacle in defeating Ripon as Coach Evans' eleven is badly crippled and the game may be called off.

FOOTBALL GAMES SATURDAY.

Brown vs. Vermont. Bucknell vs. Muhlenberg. Carlisle vs. Syracuse. Carroll vs. Lake Forest at Waukegan. Cornell vs. Holy Cross. Dartmouth vs. Amherst. Harvard vs. Michigan at Cambridge. Indiana vs. Miami. Lehigh vs. Johns Hopkins. Marquette vs. Lawrence at Appleton. Princeton vs. Williams. Army vs. Villanova. Navy vs. N. A. C. M. Illinois vs. Minnesota at Minneapolis. Nebraska vs. Iowa state. North Dakota vs. South Dakota. Notre Dame vs. Haskell. Wisconsin vs. Chicago at Madison. Yale vs. Colgate, at New Haven. Washington and Jefferson vs. U. of W. V.

through the season without a blemish. Harvard favorite. Two weeks ago, Michigan was picked to beat Harvard but since the western team showed how badly crippled they were in the Syracuse game last Saturday, the odds have changed. The past two weeks in football have been rather complicated and the strength of many of the teams has not been uncovered. Harvard in two games has not presented the same lineup but against Yost's aggression, Hardwick, Mahan, Logan, and prob-

Mahan.

Mahan of Harvard's back field is looming up as a great player and one who can be depended upon when the big gridiron struggles begin. With Brickley out of the game, he and Hardwick must do the heaviest fighting for the Crimson.

SIMPLE BUT SURE

HYOMEL THE GREAT CATARRH REMEDY. "JUST BREATHE IT" AND BE CURED.

Do not try to cure catarrh, head colds, or sniffles by taking drugs. These common but dangerous ailments that often cause the loss of hearing cannot be cured that way. The commonsense method is to breathe Hyomel, which gets the medication right where it is needed to heal the raw and inflamed lining of the air passages.

Hyomel is a mixture of antiseptic oils—you breathe it—no bother; no disagreeable medicine; simply use the inhaler a few times daily and this health-giving medication will quickly soothe and heal the irritated tissues, stop distressing choking and unpleasant discharges—you breathe freely—dull headaches cease, and every catarrhal symptom soon vanishes.

There is nothing more simple and safe to use, or that gives such rapid and lasting benefit as Hyomel—and Smith Drug Co. sell it on the "No-cure-no-pay" plan.

DECIDING GAME WILL BE PLAYED AT YOSTS

Game Between Beloit North Ends and Cardinals Sunday Will Close Baseball Season.

Unless cold weather prevents the Janesville Cardinals and the Beloit North Ends will settle their title dispute Sunday, in the third and deciding game of the series and end the baseball season in this city. The Cardinals have played the North Ends five times during the present season, which in four of the games they returned the victors.

As expected, the North Ends have "loaded" their lineup for the coming game to gain revenge for the humiliating defeat the Cardinals gave the Line City nine a week ago at the Association park diamond. As the Janesville team came out on the wrong side of the ledger in the game it is doubtful if the same nine, with Bradshaw in the box, will oppose the Beloit players Sunday. Crandall will do the leading for the Cardinals, unless present plans are changed at the eleventh hour.

Wootton and Garrity are scheduled as Beloit's battery, with an all-star infield of Cornell, Cavanaugh, Lennon and a new man at third.

Hyland and Merrickle who played short and third for the locals, may again fill the infield Sunday, with Ryan at Second and Porter at the initial cushion. The outfield will remain the same, as Sullivan, Nehr and Berger have played good ball during the Crandall series and batted good. Crandall was anxious to perform against the North Ends last Sunday to gain revenge for the trimming experienced in the first game, but Bradshaw needed no help—he was more than enough for the visitors.

Sport Snap Shots

So far as is known no Grand Circuit reinsman has ever hoped to have his season's winnings reach six figures, but the tremendous gain which Tommy Murphy made this year by jumping from $74,000 to $90,931 in his winnings, makes it appear as if the time is not far away when the earnings of the Grand Circuit drivers will exceed $100,000. Walter Cox won more money than in 1913 and that in spite of the fact that when the circuit opened he disposed of, at a huge personal profit, two of the best horses in his string, the trotter Peter Scott and the pacer King Coughman. Ed Geers and Lon McDonald were the big winners considering that both had small stables and newcomers to the list of big money-winning drivers include Dick McMahon, J. O. Gerrity, W. S. Garrison and Ray Snedeker.

Although the fans probably do not know it, baseball players are the greatest souvenir collectors in the world. Some of them gather gloves from every city they visit, some collect pipes, and one noted ball player has been a fiend for some years in collecting fancy rugs. Buck Weaver, the White Sox shortstop, whose home is at Phenixville, Pa., is making a collection that will be the envy of men of wealth when it is completed. Money could not buy it. Weaver's hobby is discarded bats. Sticks that were owned and used by Ty Cobb, Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Joe Jackson and other sluggers, now are resting in the Weaver collection, and others are being added.

Whenever Buck gets the chance, Buck gets the autograph of the player who used the stick to manufacture base hits. It will make quite a collection of lumber when completed, but will be interesting to all who may view it.

Negotiations are under way between Messrs. Hedges and Britton in St. Louis by which the Cardinals will play on the Browns' field next year. The Cardinals' old wooden plant has been condemned, and the Brittons must move or build a new one. John E. Bruce, a stockholder in the Browns, received permission from President Johnson, of the American League, last week, to advise Hedges to close the deal. The Browns have a modern concrete and steel plant which the Cardinals are willing to rent. Johnson believes that the joint use of this park will be welcomed by the "Sound City" fans. It is believed that the negotiations will be successfully concluded in the near future.

Ad Wolgast, the one-time lightweight champion, who has been clamoring for a chance to meet "Freddie" Welsh, the world's lightweight champion, in a limited round contest, is at last to get his wish gratified. He has been matched to meet Welsh in a ten round bout at the opening boxing entertainment of the Show Association, which will be staged at Madison Square Garden on the night of November 2. As soon as Wolgast received the telegram from "Jimmy" Johnston offering him the match with the Briton he lost no time in wiring his acceptance. Wolgast further stated that he will come to this battle once to get in condition for the battle.

Since Ed Kinetchy has jumped to the Federal League, Pittsburgh is not worrying about first base. Hans Wagner will play that position next year. Hans has slowed up too much to continue at short, and Fred Clarke figures that Hans can play first base well and will be able to hit .275 or better.

STOPS INDIGESTION, SOURNESS, GAS AND DYSPESIA IN FIVE MINUTES.

If you feel bloated after eating, and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a bleeding of gas, you need Pape's Diapeasin to stop food fermentation and indigestion.

It neutralizes excessive acid, stomach poison; absorbs that misery-making gas and stops fermentation which sours your entire meal and causes Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Bilioussness, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your real and only trouble is that which

 KANSAS PRODUCTS.
 The state of Kansas survived the grasshoppers and greenback plagues, and managed to live through the Carrie Nation epidemic, and the Populist era. The state today comes before the nation as a state by choice, rather than a state by force.
 Among the unique characters produced by the Sunflower state is William Allen White of the Emporia Gazette, now a candidate for governor on the progressive ticket; and Walt Mason, of the same paper, whose prose poetry is read in all parts of the country.
 A correspondent for "Collier's" has this to say about these two men, which indicates that they must have a merry time running a newspaper.
 "Three religious manifestations occurred while I was in Kansas. A negro preacher came out with a platform declaring definitely in favor of a 'hot hell,' another preacher affirmed that he had the answer to the 'riddles of the universe,' and William Allen White came out with the news that he had 'got religion.'"
 "Now, if William Allen White of the Emporia 'Gazette' really has done that, a number of consequences are likely to occur. For one thing, a good many Americans who follow with interest Mr. White's opinions are likely also to follow him in this; and if they fail to do so voluntarily, they are likely to get religion stuffed right down their throats. White declares that it is good for them, they'll get it, never fear! For White's the kind of man who gives us what is good for us, even if it kills us. Another probable result of White's coming out in the 'Gazette' in favor of religion would be the simultaneous appearance, in the 'Gazette,' of an anti-religious propaganda by Walt Mason. That is the way the 'Gazette' is run. White is the proprietor and has his say as editor, but Walt Mason, who is associated with him on the 'Gazette,' also has his say, and his say is far from being dictated by the publisher. White, for instance, favors woman suffrage; Mason does not. White is a progressive; Mason a standstill. White believes in the commission form of government, which Emporia has; Mason does not. Mason believes in White for governor of Kansas, whereas White, himself, protests passionately that the 'Gazette' is against 'that man White.'"
 "Says a 'Gazette' editorial, apropos of a movement to nominate White on the progressive ticket: 'We are one that man White. Perhaps he pays his debts. He may be kind to his family. But he is not the man to run for governor. And if he is a candidate for governor or for any other office, we propose to tell the truth about him—how he robbed the county with a padded printing bill, how he offered to trade off his support to a congressman for a government building, how he blazed a trail for good citizens and has run a bulldozer, disreputable newspaper in this town for twenty years, and has grafted off business men and sold fake mining stock and advocated anarchy and assassinations.'"
 "These are but a few preliminary things that occur to us as the moment passes. We shall speak plainly hereafter. A word to the wise gathers no more."
 "That is the way they run the Emporia 'Gazette.' It is a kind of forum in which White and Mason air their different points of view, for, as Mason said to me: 'The only public question on which White and I agree is the infallibility of the groundhog as a weather prophet.'"
 "White and Colonel Nelson of the Kansas City 'Star' are great friends and great admirers of each other. One day they were talking together about politics.
 "I hear," said Colonel Nelson, "that Shannon (Shannon is the democratic boss of Kansas City) says he wants to live long enough to go to the state legislature and get a law passed making it only a misdemeanor to kill an editor."
 "Colonel," replied White, "I think such a law would be too drastic. I think editors should be protected during the mating season and while caring for their young. And further, more, I think no man should be allowed to kill more editors at any time than he and his family can eat."

WAR TO DATE.

In summing up the European struggle to date the Wall Street Journal says that with a share of partisanship, but as a simple economic proposition, it was recently said by these columns that early defeat was the best thing that could happen to Germany, not merely for herself, but for the world, and, ultimately, for her share in the world's trade.
 A glance at the results of the war to date will emphasize that proposition, if any emphasis were needed. In twelve weeks of war the German armies are virtually where they started in the first rush through Belgium, and rather worse off in the east than before von Hindenburg's victory; with the expenditure of certainly not less than $420,000,000, and with 750,000 men killed, wounded or missing, all of the flower of the German army. These figures are designedly conservative.
 Yet it was admitted the idea that the position now held in Belgium and France should have been attained not in twelve weeks, but in half as many days, with an uncontrollable momentum calculated to carry Paris and the channel ports. How will the German public feel in a long winter campaign, mostly in entrenched positions within their own borders, with all their ports virtually blocked, and with export production at a standstill?
 There is something pathetic about the position of the conscript, and something menacing also. He is a wonder machine where he has been disciplined out of thinking for himself. But what a potential explosive he may be when he begins to think! He has been taught to believe that Germany, French and his entire staff, "Revolt in Ireland," "Revolution in South Africa," "Revolt in India," "Canada demands annexation by the United States," "Recruiting in England collapses and labor unions refuse to fight," "Total strike of all transport workers on British railroads," "Zepplens sink thirty-nine British battleships," and all the rest of the dangerous foolishness, published by presumably reputable German newspapers, and used to keep up the courage of the soldier in the field and the taxpayer at home.
 American newspapers have been blamed for declining to publish this kind of stuff, which seems to be the "unofficial" staple supply of German newspapers. Such "news" was a boomerang effect. When the armies go into camp for the winter, and a nation, so beleaguered as that of Germany, realizes not that it is patriotic, but that it is hungry, what will be the pressure of public opinion upon that great war machine which staked all the war supply trust had, and all Germany had, in its mercantile marine and foreign trade, on a single throw of the dice?
 "What, moreover, will be the effect of this costly Prussian obsession on temperate and peaceful members of the German Federation, like Saxony, Bavaria and Wurttemberg?"

RULE OF RUIN.

It is a campaign of rule or ruin that the Blaine faction is attempting. The men behind his campaign repudiate the primary law, repudiate the Mary Ann law, repudiate the principles of republicanism and democracy and join in a band of political outlaws to rule or ruin the republican party, elect a candidate and States senator if possible and otherwise turn the state upside down. They urge the adoption of the ten amendments which are all of the most ultra-progressive type, urge the election of a man named Blaine for the governorship, a man who has no claim to either the republican or democratic party vote, whose candidacy was born in revolt of the regular order of affairs and whose sole ambition is said to be the defeat of Philipp and McGovern. The La Crosse Leader sums up the situation when it says:
 "Republicans, if they wish, have the right to turn the state over to the democrats. That doesn't mean that the state will go to ruin. But they must not run under false notions of what they are doing. Every vote they give to Blaine will help by just that much to make Karel governor. And if Karel is chosen governor and running United States senator, the Wisconsin democracy will be in an excellent position to carry Wisconsin and tighten their grip on the state government in 1916. Senator La Follette knows all this as well as anybody. Doubtless he feels that he has received all the honor the state intends to give him, and he will try to ruin where he cannot rule. Is it the wish of Wisconsin republicans to help him wreck the party which has broken away from his control?"

Next Tuesday is election day. It is up to every tax payer to go to the polls and give his choice for the various offices to be voted for. If he looks to the interests of his pocketbook he will vote the straight republican ticket, both for United States Senator and for all state, legislative and county offices. These men stand for lower taxes, for administration of state affairs on a business basis and should demand the support of every citizen who has his own best interests at heart.
 Thus far Judge Karel's campaign has been conducted along clean lines. The bitter attacks that have been made upon him are those of the political outlaws and their newspapers, who form the Blaine contingent. Even the churches have been assailed by the Blaine adherents and politics is called into play a part in religion. A means religious belief should be his own private affair and not brought into a political campaign. However the rule or ruin party have no sense of moral obligation and are using every means to further their end.
 The Home Helpers Bureau advertised for women to knit mittens, for men to work in yards, beat rugs and so forth and ready response was received. The organization plans to list all the names received and as a free employment bureau it will be a great benefit to the persons wanting workers and those who want work. It is a great work that these ladies are undertaking and the co-operative feature appeals to the public.
 Thus far Janesville has escaped any real campaigning this year. It is true that Philip, Milton Junction and Beloit, Karel is to come into the county, visit friends in Janesville but speak at Beloit and Blaine's campaign manager fell down on his address to have been delivered here Thursday. However there are still

OUR National Opportunity LESSONS for AMERICA from the WAR

WE MUST BECOME SAVINGS DEPOSITORS.
 (By Robert H. Benedict.)
 We are in a fair way to learn two very valuable lessons from the European war:
 1. To eliminate extravagance and waste.
 2. To save money.
 Our country is so rich in resources and the production of new wealth has gone on at so tremendous a pace that we have grown to be a nation of careless spenders. Our lesson comes none too soon.
 That the curse of extravagance is being sternly put down cannot be doubted. We are coming to think so much more of the worth of a dollar that we are growing more reluctant about putting it to unworthy purposes.
 The more elaborate lobster palaces of New York were the first to suffer from the changed economic conditions. The demand for costly costly raiment, sold by its foreign labels, is bound to decrease, and we will go more simply and sensibly dressed. There will be less gauding about Europe, for a year or two at least. Imported champagne will not tempt so strongly.
 We have never been good money savers. Only 98 out of each thousand of us have savings accounts. England puts us to shame with 392 out of a thousand. Germany does better with 317, while France has 345 savings accounts for every thousand of population. Switzerland leads all with 554. Denmark follows with 442. Norway is next with 435. Sweden is close behind with 404, and Belgium, no so sorely troubled, boasted 397 savings depositors for every thousand inhabitants before the war.
 We are confronted with the fact that saving, besides being individually desirable, is now absolutely necessary if national development is to go on.
 Briefly, we must finance our own railroads and big industrial developments hereafter. Europe formerly did this for us, but it can't any more.
 If we put our money into savings accounts, we know that we are ready for anything the future may bring. We also know that we are going to be ready to lend with increased prosperity demands industrial expansion.

BARN AND COOP DAMAGED BY FIRE LAST EVENING
 Boys, matches and kerosene are said to have caused the fire last evening about nine o'clock at the residence of August Bogardus on Monroe street. A barn and adjoining building used as a chicken coop caught fire and one side of the barn was burning fiercely when the apartment arrived, being called from an alarm pulled onto the barn. Nine hundred feet of hose were laid, and the one line of hose proved sufficient to extinguish the blaze which spread some damage to the barn and chicken coop. There was a quantity of furniture stored in the barn which suffered from the fire and smoke. According to reports several youths were in the barn, but built onto the barn, and one of them tipped a kerosene lamp over, causing the fire.
MESSANGER BOY NEARLY TRAMPOLED ON BY HORSE
 Henry Williams, a messenger boy for a local telegraph company, yesterday afternoon attempted to haul onto the shafts of a buggy in going up the Milwaukee street hill and as a result the bicycle was smashed and the boy nearly trampled by the horse. The A. D. T. found peddling up the steep incline hard and figured he could save a great deal of pumping energy by pushing the bicycle up the hill. The theory did not work, however, and in the end the messenger boy had to "leg it" to deliver his message. The bicycle slipped under the horse while Williams fell off safely.

LOVE, LUCK & GASOLENE The Story

Bunny's daughter Lillian is quite justly known as Miss Tomboy. She returns the love of Cutey, a wealthy young chap, whom Bunny does not favor. Bunny does his best to prevent meetings between his daughter and Cutey, so everything develops into a battle of wits between Bunny and the combined forces of Miss Tomboy and Cutey. Bunny becomes owner of fast sailboat just about the time Miss Tomboy wins a swimming race in which she wears a boy's bathing costume. For this prank her father locks her in her room for a week, taking all her pretty clothes away from her. While she is in this dilemma Cutey learns that Bunny's captain has been taken ill, a fact which will probably cause Bunny to lose the race in which his new sailboat is entered.
 Cutey figures that Miss Tomboy can sail the boat to victory, so he succeeds in getting a suit of his clothes to the girl. She climbs down the porch, and true to his prediction, proves herself the winner. Bunny is delighted until he learns that it is his daughter who so ably handled his little craft, then his delight turns to chagrin and he determines to marry Miss Tomboy off to his friend Van Alstyne, an impossible being for Miss Tomboy.
 She determines to elope with Cutey and sends him word to have his fast steam yacht ready to make a rush for Newport. Van Alstyne learns of the scheme, advises Bunny and they start in pursuit in Bunny's steam yacht, a much faster vessel. In his dilemma, Cutey sends a wireless to his friend who owns a fifty mile an hour racing motor boat. Immediately the friend sets out and soon passes Bunny's yacht and overtakes Cutey and Miss Tomboy, taking them abroad and starting another race for Newport.
 Bunny, in determination, starts after the speedy motor boat in a monoplane. Miss Tomboy sees him coming and Cutey hurries to shore and succeeds in getting a racing hydro-aeroplane. Bunny, in his anxiety to have his aviator overtake the flying boat, falls out of the "plane" into the water, being rescued by his daughter and wins the battle of wits, convincing Bunny that Cutey would make a worthy son-in-law, so he gives his consent. Cutey and Miss Tomboy fly across the sea to happiness just as Van Alstyne hurriedly arrives. He is too late and Bunny's sense of humor permits him to enjoy a good laugh at the expense of the crestfallen Van Alstyne. See it at the Majestic tomorrow.

FINISH TESTIMONY BEFORE COMMISSION

Both Sides—City and Company—Will Submit Written Arguments on "Going Value" of Water Works.

The evidence in the hearings before the state railroad commission on the valuation of the Janesville water works, for the purchase of the company by the city, was closed yesterday afternoon, after further written arguments to determine the "going value" of the plant will be submitted by the attorneys representing the city and company.

The total valuation of all the physical property of the company was tentatively placed by the engineers at $21,000, which the city officials regard as an initial victory in obtaining the value of the plant. The water company introduced testimony during the proceedings showing the plant and equipment to be of value in the neighborhood of $30,000, giving the commission an opportunity to render a finding between the two figures.

The "going value" of the plant was defined as the total cost of the building up of the business to its present state. The commission ordered that the exhaustive testimony offered during the repeated hearings be transcribed and the commission to submit written arguments regarding the estimate due to compensate the company for the "going value" of the plant.

A decision on this point will close the case, and empower the city to take over the company. In case the final figure is unsatisfactory both sides have the right to appeal to the courts, which would create the matter along further, but the possession of the works goes to the city.

When the arguments pertaining to the value of the building up of the business are considered by the commission, the total purchase price of the company should be arrived at within a short time.

At the hearing yesterday, C. V. Kerch, city engineer, Mayor James A. Fallers, Engineer Zlatow, employed by the railroad commission, and H. Klein, chief engineer of the first reformation festival testimony. Besides verbal evidence, documents were introduced by charts, maps of plating, covering the relative cost of the company's equipment to obtain a five year average price.

On Wednesday, Mr. Maxey, a stockholder, of the local plant, of Oshkosh, Wisconsin, testified during the greater part of the day. Harry Fyzer, of Janesville, an employee of the company, testified also.

The Evening Chit-Chat

MEETING ONE'S REAL SELF.

DO YOU sometimes remember a remark which someone has made to you without being able to recall the speaker? And when this happens, do you sometimes, before being able to place the speaker's identity, know whether it is someone whom you like or dislike, fear or look down upon, respect or despise. That is a queer experience which often comes to me. For instance, the other day as I was riding past a certain house, I recalled that someone had remarked how artistic the hollyhocks in the front yard looked against the background of the weathered house. I could not remember who had said that and yet I knew it was someone whom I did not like. I determined to find out the speaker, and no one could be more astonished than I to find that I did not like her. And yet it was true. When I looked the thing in the face, I saw a very worthy person, but down in my subconscious self where there are no pretenses I had been disliking her all the time and it had taken this experience to bring me face to face with my real feelings.

What wonderful actors and actresses we all are! Not just before the world but before ourselves. I have related a personal experience at such length because it seems to me it is an excellent illustration of the fact that each of us has a secret self and that we know surprisingly little of the underneath self.

"The one person he knows best in the world" is sometimes playfully used to refer to the man himself and nobody questions who is meant. Yet it is an accurate expression after all? Do we know our own selves, our real selves much better than we know our neighbors know us. I doubt it.

Perhaps you have had some experience like mine. But if you have, you have surely experienced some other kind of self-revelation and have been astonished to find that under self different from what you fancied it.

We all know that love may live in the under self for many years and the upper self know nothing about its existence until some accident such as the danger of loss or the sting of jealousy brings it suddenly to the attention of the upper self.

Most of us live too close to the surface. We forget that the upper self which is so busy playing some pretty part before the world is not all there is to us. We forget that somewhere down underneath is the real self that has no poses, no pretenses, no self-deceptions—the self that after all we should be most interested in since when we do pass into another stage of existence, that will be the self we must carry with us.

AMERICAN MADE FOR THE AMERICAN MAID

Americans Left to Own Ability to Design Fashions for the Elite.

By Margaret Mason

American made for American maid. As a siskin is really first rate; So Fashion made for the American maid. Next week here they'll start. That will settle our fashionable fate.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New York, Oct. 30th.—(It will surely be some time before American designers and dressmakers and milliners are pretty certain to land with both feet when the home fashion is pulled off in our midst November fourth, fifth and sixth at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.)

Maybe it isn't so much patriotism as it is desperation now that the Parisian road to fashion is closed to lovely women, that has caused her to start this agitation to boost American styles. Anyway, all the little Yankee Doodle milliners and dressmakers and tailors are too busy getting ready to prove their long sustained cry that they can produce just as good models as the Parisians if only the women would give them a chance, to bother about the motive.

This gala affair which is intended to show Americans what Americans can do in the clothes line was started by a well known fashion publication and the list of its exclusive and moneyed patronesses has grown and varied exceedingly strong. The names of such fashionably elect as Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Philip Lytle, Mrs. Conde Nast, Mrs. Amos R. P. Finch, Mrs. T. Sullivan Taylor, Mrs. Frederick Townsend and Mrs. French Vanderbilt. With such advocates ready to do homegrown models, Mrs. Harman Platt and indeed Mrs. Everywoman, U. S. A., are bound to follow suit—and hat and gown also.

Here's the idea—on the evenings of November 4, 5 and 6 a room of the last named two days the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton, donated by the management, will be people with fascinating and charming manikins all dotted up in the latest creations of all the smartest and most exclusive—tailors, dressmakers and milliners of New York. They will parade slowly about in that form of locomotion peculiar to the genius manikin before the admiring gaze of the smart set, the stage favorites, the general public and those of the hotel who have had the $3 price of a ticket admission. They will promenade to the sweet and strains of the smartest and best orchestra in town. Other diversions in the way of entertainment are promised but the manikins in all their glory and the American made sartorial creations are the big show.

The fete will be copied after the famous Paris openings and the models selected for exhibition will be chosen by a jury of the patronesses. No exhibit will be allowed more than two models in each class of garments, which are divided into five classes. These include tailored suits and gowns, hats, furs and blouses; loquacious afternoon frocks, hats and furs; evening gowns and wraps and a specialty.

Little Midget and Curly. (1) You are altogether too young to go out alone or keep regular company with boys. Girls of that age and their boy friends should have a club and meet at the different houses and have a jolly good time together. (2) No. Girls are considered common who allow boys such liberties. Do not do it. I want my girls to be of better type. (3) Certainly, if you see your friends, that is the only proper place, and your mother should not desert the parlor. They should not stay later than 10 o'clock. (4) If he writes and asks for an answer, there is nothing improper about it. You write sensibly. (5) Certainly, you never want to agree to anything with him forever, did you? Simply say you have an engagement for that evening. There is nothing to do but to refuse to make a date with a boy you do not like. (6) In the afternoon, yes, but not alone in a double buggy might ride till 10 o'clock. (7) It would be well to have your parents know what kind of boys they are trusting you with. Any careful mother will make inquiries about her daughter's friends.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Chestnuts may be kept in fine "eating" condition by drying for three or four days after gathering, then in a dry place, and fastening rubbers and caps securely. This method entirely prevents them from becoming "finty".

Never put tin or metal covers over vinegar. It spoils the vinegar, makes it flat and tasteless. To clean white feathers, make paste of gasoline and flour, wash feathers in this until clean. Rinse in clean gasoline, shake until dry and all flour is out. This is very easy, feathers look like new, keep their own and it's inexpensive. Clothes can be cleaned the same way, to get best results put on the hands and rub.

As the time is drawing near to use your yarn, try steaming the yarn in water and hang up to dry before using; it will not shrink or stretch.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES. The brown spots which come on the face of elderly persons may often be cured by applying a salve of sulphur and oil from mutton tallow; leaves the skin clear, of a natural color.

Deodorizer for Sickroom—Freshly ground coffee placed on a saucer with a piece of gum camphor in center and candle lighted, will produce a pleasant and healthful odor in a room.

CANDIES. Maple Fudge—One cup brown sugar, one cup granulated sugar, three-fourths cup sweet milk. Place over slow fire and let boil fifteen minutes. Remove from fire, add one teaspoon vanilla and one teaspoon sugar, beat until it thickens, add one-half cup chopped nuts, spread on buttered tin and cut when cool.

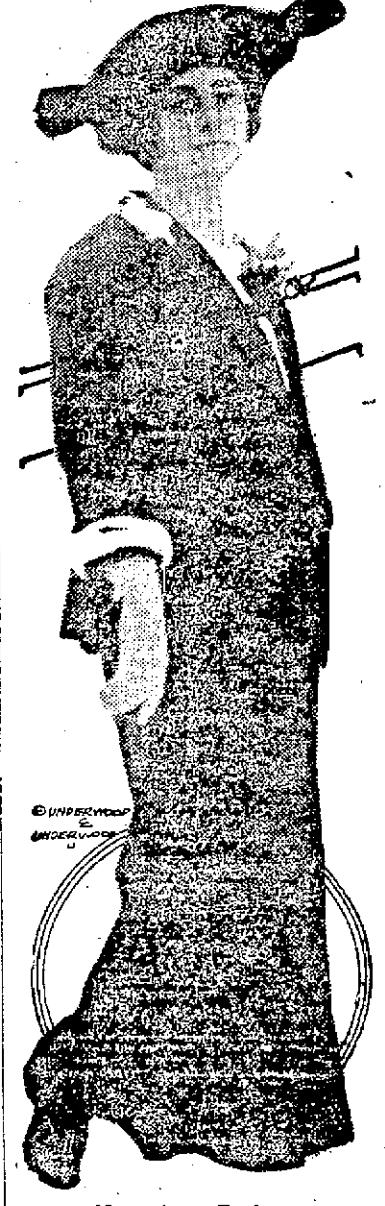

THE TABLE. Fried Eggplant—Cut eggplant in slices half inch thick; pare each piece and lay in weak salt water for an hour or more, then wipe each slice, dip it in beaten egg and roll in bread crumbs or grated crackers. Fry in hot lard till soft and a nice brown color.

Pudding a la Zouave—Pare four good-sized apples and grate them

negligees. This is the first time in America that anything of the sort on such an elaborate scale has been attempted. Of course, the several large department stores have had their season fashion shows, where manikins waxed and money talked but those were to display the "dernier cri" of the courtiers and modistes of that dear meaning anything but cheap. Paris while this coming event in the fashionable world will bear the stamp of American approval, the seal of the United States and the labels of New York firms only.

Best of all, the proceeds are to go to the Committee of Mercy which is organized for the relief of all those poor women and little children of every nation left destitute by the European war—not only of fashion but of everything that makes life worth living or even possible. It isn't often that the foibles and frailties of fashion

KAISER DECORATES, THEN ARRESTS HER

Mme. Anna Pavlova, the famous Russian dancer, has just arrived in this country after an interesting experience in the war zone. Just before the war began, she was dancing in Berlin and was applauded by the Kaiser, who gave her the Order of Merit. But when war was declared this did not save her from arrest as a spy.

GOES TO CAPITAL TO SPEND WINTER

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I had a great deal to say about a great deal of each other. I was acquainted with another girl that my friend did not know. She asked me to give her an introduction. I did so. And since that time I have been down and goes with her. What can I do to get her back? (2) I have plenty of friends, but I liked this one especially. (3) Would you please tell me what to serve at a 6 o'clock dinner for about twelve girls? (3) What would be a nice name for a new sewing club of about eight young girls, about fifteen and sixteen? (4) How long should a girl of sixteen stay at a party when she must come home alone? (5) What is a good lunch to have at a surprise party for twenty girls? (1) Probably it is the novelty of things that attracts the two girls. I would not notice any slight. Be just as cordial and friendly to them as ever. Do pleasant little things, be sunny and obliging. Little will find very soon that the friend will be the same as of old. (2) Meat loaf, escalloped tomatoes with celery and a little onion added (this is delicious). Pare potatoes and roast in pan with meat loaf. For salad stuff cream cheese with cottage or Dutch cheese. In which chopped nuts have been mixed. When cold cut in slices and pour over cooked salad dressing. For dessert half a grapefruit. (3) If there are just eight the Octagon club would be a good name, or the Priscilla club. Priscilla was so industrious. (4) The hostess should see that all the guests have company home. No girl should be alone on the street.

The Wife's Money

"How fine your strawberries are!" said Mrs. Forsyth as she held a particularly luscious one up to enjoy its beauty before eating it.

"Come often and get some for supper," said the owner of the fine bed.

"Oh, no, you more than you can use. Fruit is a luxury in this new country."

"Jack gives them all away, except what I use, cat fresh," replied the other woman. "You might as well have them as that saloon keeper at the Junction."

"Why don't you can them while he is away?" pursued Mrs. Forsyth. "I'd steal a march on him some way and save the fruit."

"I can hide nothing in the two little rooms of that tiny place," said Mrs. Carroll, pointing to the snug log house that looked like a brown mushroom, so perfectly in harmony was it with its surroundings.

"He gets all our money; he might as well have the berries, too," she added with a touch of bitterness that she did not succeed in hiding.

"Well, I must go home and get my supper. What a surprise these berries will be for John! He is so fond of them. I hope our bed will be hearing next year. Good-bye and thank you so much."

"Mary, I believe they are bringing Carroll home either injured or intoxicated," called Mr. Forsyth as he stood by the door of their little log house that evening.

"I must go over at once," answered his wife. "I may be needed. You had better not leave here until the milking is done unless it is necessary. I will wait some more while it is best for you to come now," and Mrs. Forsyth hurried away.

The kindly neighbors had placed Mr. Carroll on the bed in a living room and Mrs. Carroll was sitting with her head buried on her arms by

THE TABLE. Fried Eggplant—Cut eggplant in slices half inch thick; pare each piece and lay in weak salt water for an hour or more, then wipe each slice, dip it in beaten egg and roll in bread crumbs or grated crackers. Fry in hot lard till soft and a nice brown color.

Pudding a la Zouave—Pare four good-sized apples and grate them

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Chestnuts may be kept in fine "eating" condition by drying for three or four days after gathering, then in a dry place, and fastening rubbers and caps securely. This method entirely prevents them from becoming "finty".

Never put tin or metal covers over vinegar. It spoils the vinegar, makes it flat and tasteless. To clean white feathers, make paste of gasoline and flour, wash feathers in this until clean. Rinse in clean gasoline, shake until dry and all flour is out. This is very easy, feathers look like new, keep their own and it's inexpensive. Clothes can be cleaned the same way, to get best results put on the hands and rub.

As the time is drawing near to use your yarn, try steaming the yarn in water and hang up to dry before using; it will not shrink or stretch.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES. The brown spots which come on the face of elderly persons may often be cured by applying a salve of sulphur and oil from mutton tallow; leaves the skin clear, of a natural color.

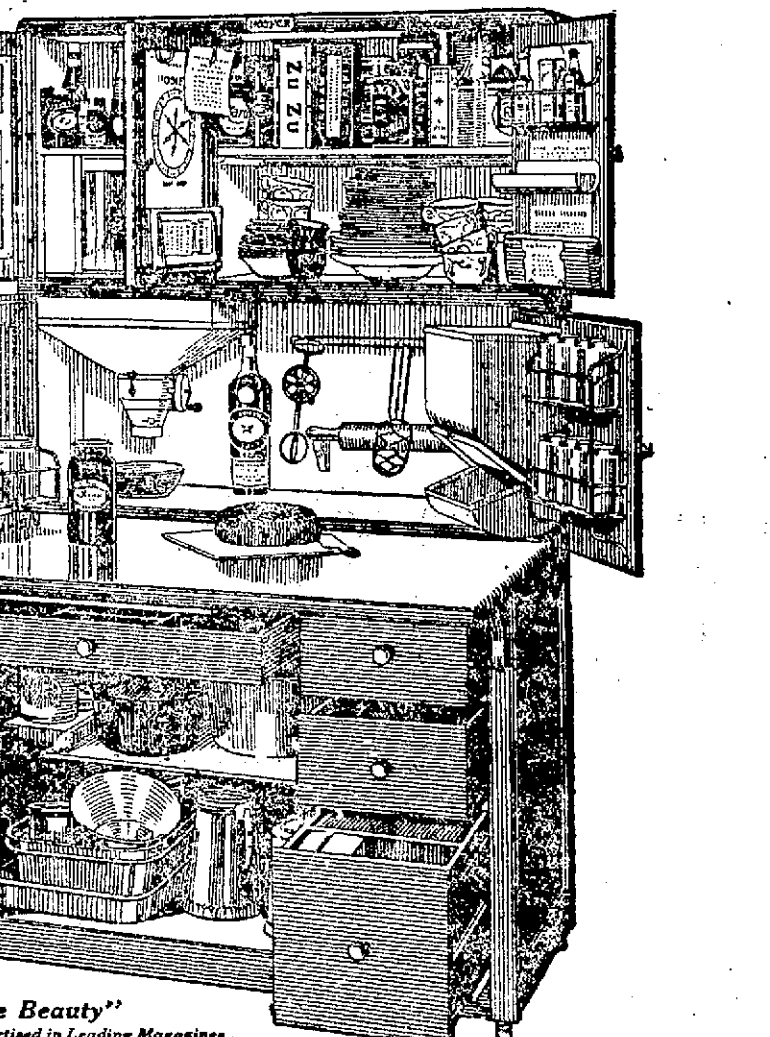

Deodorizer for Sickroom—Freshly ground coffee placed on a saucer with a piece of gum camphor in center and candle lighted, will produce a pleasant and healthful odor in a room.

Sounds of scuffling of feet were audible on the first landing. Alan addressed himself impetuously to the staircase, gaining its top in half a dozen leaps, and only in time to see a door slammed at the forward end of the hall and hear a key turned in its lock.

A cluster of men blocked the way. He didn't pause to wait for it to be cleared, but threw himself headlong into their midst, and by dint of the surprise had gained the closed door before they recovered and sought to stop him.

Indifferent to them all, he shook the knob and shouted: "Rose! Rose!" Her cry came back to him, a muffled scream: "Alan! Help! Help!" Backing away with a mad idea of throwing himself bodily against the door and breaking it down, he was suddenly confronted by a hideous mask of humanity—face of man all misshapen, bruised and swollen and disfigured with smears of dried blood and a dirty bandage round his temples, but none the less vaguely recognizable.

The words that streamed from its distorted lips drove recognition home. "Gee, fellers, look! who's here! If it ain't the guy what threw me off'n that girder this mornin'. Stand back and let me kill 'em!"

Without the hesitation of a heartbeat Alan swung heavily for the thug's jaw. The blow went solidly home. The man fell like a poled ox.

Pandemonium ensued. Rallying to their comrades, the ruffians attacked Alan with one mind and one intent. Murder would have been done then, and there had it not been for a rotten banister-rail, which gave way, precipitating the lot to the ground floor of the hallway.

Simultaneously the lamp on the wall was struck from its bracket and crashed to the floor, its glass well breaking and loosing a flood of kerosene to receive the burning wick. The explosion followed instantly. In a trice the hallway was a lake of burning oil, and hungry flames were licking up the rotting wallpaper and eating into decayed baseboards and stair-treads.

Still fighting like a madman, contesting every foot of the way Alan was borne down the hall and out of the front door. A scream of "Fire!" greeted him as he reeled out into the open. It was echoed by a dozen throats.

The doorway vomited men and women of the tenement. They choked it for a time, blocking both egress and ingress. By the time they broke out and left the way clear a solid wall of flame stood behind it.

Thrice Alan essayed to pass that barrier of fire, and thrice it threw him back. Then, struggling and kicking to release himself and, try again, he was seized by a brace of abie-bodied policemen and rushed fifty feet from the house before he got.

Lack of breath checked him momentarily. He looked up, dashing from his smarting eyes tears drawn by the stifling clouds of smoke, and saw vaguely at the second story window a woman leaning out and shrieking for help.

That it was hopeless to attempt the staircase he well knew. Drawing aside, he endeavored to come to his sober senses, and cast about for some more feasible way to effect the rescue of his Rose.

The tenement occupied one corner of a narrow street. Directly opposite, a storage warehouse stood upon the other corner. Before this last was the common landing stage for truck deliveries, protected by a shed-roof. And, suspended from a timber that peered out over the eaves, a hoisting tackle dragged the ground with its ropes.

It was the work of a minute to convince a thick-headed policeman that the attempt was feasible and should be permitted. It was the work of less than another minute to rig a loop in the line and fasten round his body beneath the arms. Volunteers did not lack; a couple of husky longshoremen sprang to the ropes at his first call. They heaved with a will. His feet left the ground, he soared, he caught the eaves of the shed-roof, and shouting to cease hauling, drew himself up on this last, backed a little ways down it and calculating his direction nicely, with a running jump launched himself out over the street.

The momentum of his leap carried him well out over the heads of the throng assembled in the street and truly toward that window where Rose was waiting. Then its force slackened. For an awful instant he believed that he had failed. But with the last expiring ounce of impetus, he was brought within grasping distance of the window sill.

Hauling himself up, he gathered her into his arms.

A great tongue of tawny flame licked angrily out of the windows as he swung her back to safety.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Jailbird.

The period of restraint in durance suffered by one Thomas Barcus in consequence of conduct riotous, unseemly, and in general prejudicial to the public peace of the New Bedford waterfront at half-past four in the morning, proved in the upshot far more brief than had been fondly hoped, not only by his just judge, but, singularly enough, by the misdeedant himself.

Taking everything gravely into consideration, including a person anything but prepossessing, the judge reckoned that, in default of a fine of one hundred dollars, a ten-day layup for repairs and repentance was not too much to mete out to the prisoner at the bar.

He was sentenced at 10 a. m. and it was little short of 10 p. m. when his post-prandial repose was disturbed by the rattle of a key in the lock of the door to his cell.

Sitting up, Mr. Barcus rubbed his eyes and combed his hair with his fingers.

"What did I tell you?" he observed resignedly. "It begins again already."

Conducted with every evidence of disesteem on the part of his jailers to the office of the warden, he was acquainted with the fact that his fine had been paid by no one less than the judge himself; then present in portly and solicitous person.

"If only you had told me you were a friend of Mr. Digby's," the judge hastened to say as soon as the two were ensconced in the privacy of the judicial limousine. "I would have known better how to guide myself in this unfortunate affair."

"And if you will be good enough to indicate how else I may serve you?"

"Digby didn't offer any suggestions in his wire, I gather?"

"One moment: I have it here."

"Naturally I'd like a bath and a change of clothes," Barcus pursued while the judicial breast-pocket was being explored; "and I could do with transportation to New York by the first train out of this God-forsaken hole!"

Charged With the Assassination of Alan.

"This is what Mr. Digby says," the judge interrupted, laboriously deciphering the message by the light of a match. "Please see to immediate release of one Thomas Barcus, probably in jail in your jurisdiction for rioting on waterfront this morning. Pay his fine and instruct him to report to me in New York at earliest feasible hour. Give him all the money he wants and look to me for remuneration."

"Eh?" Barcus interrupted, sitting up smartly; "what's that last again?"

Patiently the judge repeated the sentence from the message.

"Thanks. Please don't read farther. You might come to something that would spoil it. It's almost too beautiful as it stands," Barcus observed. "Law owes me five thousand or so liquidated damages—but I'll be reasonable. Frisk this burg for a fifth of that sum before train time—and I promise to ask nothing more!"

His private comment was: "Two suspected that this was a fairy-tale all along. Now I know it is!"

And this phase of incredulity persisted in coloring the complexion of his mind until the moment, some hours later, when the train connecting at Providence with the Midnight Express for New York pulled out of New Bedford bearing a transformed Barcus—almost impenetrably disguised in a bath, a shave and a haircut, an outfit of clothing originally tailored for a gentleman of discriminating taste, but no whit less disguised in the sense of affluence that goes with the possession of one thousand dollars in cash.

Not until a sound night's sleep had topped off the beginning of his rest in jail did Barcus come down to earth.

He demonstrated his return to common sense by making a round breakfast in Grand Central station before looking up the residence of Digby in the telephone directory.

The information he gathered from the voice that answered the name of Mr. Digby over the telephone shook only momentarily Barcus' innate conviction that intimate acquaintance with battle, murder and sudden death was the inevitable reward of association with this friend of his heart.

"Alan being married to Rose Trine in Jersey City at this very minute!" he breathed skeptically as he emerged from the booth memorizing the address of the alleged officiating clergyman. "I don't believe it; it's too sudden."

Forthwith he engaged a taxicab to convey him to Jersey City, at top speed, for an exorbitant reward.

And when, from the forward deck of a ferryboat, he beheld a dense volume of smoke advertising a conflagration on the Jersey shore, not far from the waterfront, he shook a moodily sagacious head.

"If Alan isn't mixed up in that, somehow," he declared, "he's missing a bet for once—and I'm a sorry failure as a prophet of woe and disaster!"

There was as much intuitive apprehension as humor responsible for this remark; witness the fact that, on landing, he risked the delay required to turn aside and have a look at the fire.

It proved to be situated in the heart of a squalid slum—a wretched tenement of the poorest class, whose roof had already fallen in and whose walls were momentarily threatening to go by the time Barcus arrived on the scene.

"What are you giving your cows now in the way of galactagogues?"

asked the Irvington professor of the milkman.

"Oh," said the milkman, who has just been graduated from Purdue and is not to be stamped by any Butler college pedagogues, "their sustenance is wholly of vegetable origin; rich in chlorophyll and ouplent in butyrateous qualities."

A pint, if you please," said the professor.

"G'up," said the milkman.

Among the stories in the Duchess of Aosta's new book is one relating to the celebrated statue of Cecil Rhodes which stands in the main square of Bulawayo. The empire builder is figured in contemplation of his achievement with head bared. The whole district had been grievously plagued by drought for over a twelvemonth, when the natives got up a great agitation and marched in enormous numbers to the square, and, thronging around the statue of

Cecil Rhodes, insisted that it should immediately be given a top hat. They said that "Heaven respects this great creator of empire for too much to send the needed rain while he stands there bareheaded."

Bible Authors.

The men who wrote the collection of Scriptures known as the Bible (Greek Biblos, "book") were mainly of the Hebrew race. All of the Old Testament authors were probably Hebrews, and, of the New Testament, Luke was the only non-Hebrew. Luke was a Greek. It is quite likely though not proved that the writer of the "Gospel according to John" was also a Greek.

Had Lung Trouble and Expected to Die

With the afflicted world anxiously seeking a specific for Lung Trouble, the doctor's remedy, brought about through the use of Eckman's Alternative, a medicine for Throat and Lung Trouble, a cure was effected.

For fifteen years Eckman's Alternative has been used and the reports of cures indicate that this medicine is doing a vast amount of good. Read this.

"Gentlemen: I was taken sick in November, 1908, with a very bad cold and dizziness. The doctor then pronounced my case as Malaria Fever. I grew steadily worse. Had two consultations with him, and the verdict was that the fever had affected my lungs and that my case was hopeless; only gave me two months to live. My physician had tried most all kinds of treatment and none did me any good, so he asked my husband if he objected to my trying a proprietary medicine. So I began on your Alternative. I was in bed from November 30, 1908, until February 26, 1909, and was then able to get up. Today I am healthy and stronger than ever. BRILEY."

(Above abbreviated; more on request.) Eckman's Alternative has been proven by many tests to be more efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stomach and Bowel Troubles, and the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.

Agricultural and Garden Dept.

ALLEN B. WEST, Director.

In this department Professor West will answer all questions on agricultural and garden matters each Saturday. As your interest in the department develops, a more frequent insertion of the queries and answers will be made. Address all communications signed with your name, to the Agricultural Department, Gazette. Your name will be withheld, if desired. If personal answer is also desired, enclose self addressed stamped envelope.

(Allen B. West.)
Question—I have a ration for feeding hogs that calls for ground corn, but I have no ground corn, but plenty of corn in the ear, new corn, not yet dry enough for grinding. Can I use that?
Answer—If the ration you mention is for fattening you can easily substitute corn on the cob for meal. On account of the enormous quantities of corn produced and the great productivity of this starch-bearing grain, corn will continue to be the great fattening food for service in America. For feeding stock corn should never be fed over and the ration, the proportion being smallest with young animals.
As pigs increase in size, more corn can be fed until at fattening time it may well form most of the ration. Corn should usually be fed whole and on the cob, except to young pigs and these in the last stages of fattening, when it may be ground.
Question—Will the acid of ensilage injure the cement of a concrete slab?
Answer—This question was answered in a recent number of the Wisconsin Country Magazine in the following manner:
There is probably something in the idea that the attack of silage acid may affect concrete. It is, however, nothing serious. There may be a slight surface corrosion due to the solution of the lime of the cement by the acids. But if the surface is washed over every four or five years, the action of the acids will be entirely taken care of.

NEW SCHOOL MAY BE BUILT AT ONFORDVILLE

Onfordville, Oct. 29.—The matter of building a school house in the village will be brought up again at an informal meeting called to be held at the school house on the evening of the fourth of November.

It was announced in these times a few days ago that Mr. and Mrs. Ed Myhre were contemplating spending the winter in California. Mr. and Mrs. Myhre will go to Arizona for the benefit of Mr. Myhre's health. They expect to start in about two weeks.
The annual cemetery supper will be held at the opera house on the evening of Nov. 6. An elaborate program is in process of preparation and a bountiful supply of chicken pie will be in order at that time and a general good time is expected. The proceeds will be used in beautifying the local cemetery.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

LOOK, MOTHER! IF TONGUE IS COATED GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the food, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomachache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. TALK OF PROSPECTS FOR COMING YEAR

Geo. H. Brownell, Former Janesville Resident, Visits City.—Interested in Farm Work.

George H. Brownell, formerly of this city, but now located in Detroit, Michigan, is visiting his mother, Mrs. M. A. Brownell, of Forest Park for a few days. He came here from Chicago, where for the past week he has been in charge of an exhibit made by the various dairy and livestock organizations of Michigan at the National Dairy Show.

While deploring the horrors of the European war, Mr. Brownell expressed the opinion that as the result of that conflict the agricultural industry of this country is soon to enjoy a condition of prosperity never before known. "Our farmers are now scarcely able to keep up with the demand for foodstuffs in this country," said Mr. Brownell, "and even if the war in Europe is bound to be an acute food shortage in Europe for many years to come. This country will be called on first to make good the shortage, and with increased demand coming from across the water, will undoubtedly increase the cost of food in this country, we must regard this as our share of the penalty imposed by this war on the entire world. The farmer will be prosperous, however, and I have noticed that prosperity among the farmers is usually the sign of prosperity in all other industries."

"How is Detroit?" Well, the city continues to live up to its reputation for prosperity and the place where life is worth living. But it is also having its troubles as the result of gaining a reputation for prosperity. From every part of the country men and women are being constantly attracted to the city by the reports of high wages. Many secure employment and many do not. There is no estimating the number of people that flock to the city from all parts of the world when Henry Ford announced that during the present year his employees would divide the sum of $10,000,000 between them in addition to their former wage. We lived within a mile of the Ford factory at that time and saw something of the mobs that stormed the entrances to the plant both day and night. A three-inch stream from the fire hose was the argument finally used to convince the crowds that no men were being employed. As a matter of fact the increased wage has resulted in so much increased efficiency among the men that the force has been reduced instead of increased.

"Detroit is an ideal residence city, however, owing to its beautiful streets and parks and that greatest of public playgrounds, Belle Isle, in the Detroit river. Its citizens take much pride in their city. They do not wish it to become the largest city in this country, but they aim to make it the cleanest, best governed and most prosperous large city in the country."

After graduating from the University of Wisconsin, Mr. Brownell went to Detroit in 1908, where he was employed as a reporter and special writer on the Detroit Free Press. His articles on agricultural subjects attracted the attention of prominent livestock breeders of the state and as the result of their encouragement he established a semi-monthly publication in 1909 known as The Michigan Dairy Farmer. The company owning the publication is composed of Mr. Brownell, his wife, Agnes Shearer Brownell, formerly of this city, and L. M. Brownell, now of Richmond, Indiana.

In addition to his duties as editor and publisher, Mr. Brownell is now serving his second year as secretary of the Michigan State Dairyman's Association and as superintendent of the Dairy Department of the Michigan State Fair. He is also a deputy of the State Dairy and Food Department and is identified as an official with numerous other state organizations devoted to agriculture and livestock raising.

SHRAPNEL MORE EFFECTIVE THAN GERMAN RIFLE FIRE.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)
London, Oct. 30.—Shrapnel, which has done more damage to the allies than the German rifle fire, is a British invention covering a century. Its inventor was General Shrapnel, an English officer who was born in 1781 and given a commission in the royal artillery in 1799. The thought came to him during the war in Flanders, where he was impressed by the trifling effect of round shot against troops and the limited range of grape. His shell, filled with balls and powder and ignited by a time fuse, was adopted by the British army in 1802 and played an important part in the Peninsular war under Wellington and also at Waterloo. The secret of its action was unknown outside of Britain until 1834.

With the customary ingratitude of governments, General Shrapnel was never reimbursed for the expense of his experiments. All he received was 1,200 pounds a year ($8000) and the offer of a baronetcy could not afford to accept. He died in 1842 a bitter old man.

Dr. Louis Seaman, the American expert who has visited the hospitals of the allies at the front, says that the German shell has done little damage compared with those used by the Japanese against Russia, which were torn into showers of steel splinters. But the Shrapnel bullets make ragged wounds and also carry infecting material with them, causing a large percentage of deaths from blood poisoning.

The Principal Difference.
The principal difference between a man and a woman is that the woman doesn't forget that she will have to think of it the next day.

The Arrest and Trial of Jesus.

It is past midnight, but the devotees of an imperial ecclesiasticism are alert. With murderous jealousy they anticipate the delivery into their hands. Of one who must be put out of the way, or their honors and emoluments be forfeit. Rich old Annas paces the marble court of his palace and listens for the footfall of the returning band. He will soon have the satisfaction of looking in to the face of the iconoclastic Galilean, who has imperiled his vast revenues by twice cleansing the temple of the traffickers whom he had unlawfully licensed to trade there. He will see those hands bound with cords instead of plaiting cords into a whip to drive out the buyers and sellers. And, alas! also, Annas' suspicion and acting high priest is on the qui vive to carry into execution his judgment passed three months before—namely, that a worse offender than the Galilean, with better reference to his guilt or innocence, than that the nation should be jeopardized. . . . The chief priests and Pharisees are anticipating their revaluation upon one who has denounced them as serpents; who has snatched the mask from their hypocrisy. So all hell is alert that night to enjoy its short-lived triumph. A cardonic smile passes over the face of Annas as his dull ears catch the tramp of the guard. He hurries into his grand salon, and mounts his dais with tottering step. The examination of Jesus here is purely informal. It is just such a courtesy extended by Caiaphas to Annas as a little later Pilate extended to Herod. It will have weight, too, with the multitude, that the condemned is first arraigned before one who, according to Moses' law, is still a high priest. And by this device time is gained to "pack the jury" in the court which Rome recognizes; and there is a scurrying about for suborned witnesses, such as to this day can be had for a price in the lobby of almost any Oriental court. . . . There sits the Sanhedrim in form of a horseshoe, the high priest at the "top," and a scribe with ink-horn and parchment at either "corner." In the space between the scribes stands the accused, in full view of the semi-circle of venerables, who sit cross-legged. Guilt is on the bench; innocence is in the dock. How hard a verdict that will not too palpably outrage the forms of justice, and one which the Roman governor will ratify, a verdict that will involve the extreme penalty—that is the desideratum. . . . Silence is Jesus' best defense. The witnesses demolish each other's fabric of lies. Their tribunal not bent upon conviction would have thrown the case out of court. By his refusal to plead, Jesus denied the validity of the process. The silent, dignified accused, is fast throwing the court into confusion. It is at its wits' end, when bold and unscrupulous Caiaphas intervenes. He springs from his red hassock, and, rushing at Jesus with raised voice and gesture, bids him answer the "witnesses." . . . But before the vociferating judge, with his soiled ermine, Jesus maintains his imperturbable silence. A last expenditure of his fertile mind of Caiaphas. He will put Jesus in the dilemma of denying his Messiahship by persisting in his silence, or affecting gratitude for conviction for blasphemy by affirming it. By most solemn adjuration he puts Him under oath, and then proclaims his crucial question. There is not a moment's hesitation. Jesus answers again, but having utterly collapsed, he breaks his silence. He furnishes them with the ground of conviction, which they had failed to find. Then he goes on to show, whether his testimony is true or not, it might readily be shown how his character and career fulfill the prophecies. There are no Jewish or Moslem, dramatic appeal, wild gesture, or working power who might have been summoned. But, no! the case is prejudiced, the court bent on conviction. With dramatic effect Jesus, thus, Jesus, his hour having come, surrenders himself into the hands of sinners.

The Teacher's Lantern.
The canons of the Sanhedrim court were that the accused was to be esteemed innocent until proven guilty. The Sanhedrim was set to save, not to destroy life. Witness was to be established of the value of life; counsel was to be provided; the youngest judges were to vote first, in order that they might not be prejudiced by the voice of the elders; condemnation could only occur the day after the trial; a capital trial could not begin the day before a Sabbath or a feast; no criminal trial could begin or be continued at night; no one could begin or be continued at night; no one could be executed on the same day on which sentence was pronounced. Every rule was flagrantly broken in the trial of Jesus. Silence on the part of a defendant in an Oriental court is a complete anomaly. Profuse protestations of innocence, dramatic appeal, wild gesture, copious tears—these are the rule. The silent dignity of Jesus arrested the attention and struck the conscience of each court before which he was brought. The silence was thought it was condemning Jesus. In point of fact it was condemning itself. The supreme court of the Hebrew nation stands convicted as the history of the foulest crime of all ages. . . . Infidelity is like the Sanhedrim, in that it is on the search for evidence against Jesus. It is bent on conviction. Where there is no palpable insincerity, the believer does well to imitate his Master's silence, friends to call at the house to see us? What occurred ever since in court has been occurring ever since in the age-long arraignment of Jesus. The witnesses do not agree. One impeaches the other. Each new generation of skeptics presents a new hypothesis, thus denying the sufficiency of the former. Thus Strauss gives the He to Voltaire, and Bauer to Strauss, and Remond to Bauer. But to this large of infidelity Christendom responds, as from the beginning, in its glorious, unswerving credo, "I believe in Jesus Christ."

Analysis and Key.
1. Ecclesiastical trial of Jesus. (1) Sanhedrim unlawfully convened. Suborned witnesses. Jesus' silence. (2) Jesus adjured to answer. High priests' sacred oath. (3) Jesus' significant answer.
2. Ecclesiastical condemnation. (1) Death penalty passed. (2) Personal indignity to condemned.

Twelve Great Verses: (XII) The Work Verse.
"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest." . . . Labor is not a curse for sin. The obligation to work went with the gift of Eden. Adam was to dress and keep the garden. Every man's work, of whatever sort or howsoever lowly, is a distinct contribution to human betterment, and is added to the material and moral endowment of the race. Each man's subscription share keeps compounding its interest long after his hands are folded in the grave, where there is no work. The call to industry goes with the saying.

Christ at the Right Hand of God
By REV. L. W. COSNELL
Assistant to Dean
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"He was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God." Mark 16:19.

These words give us a vision of our enthroned brother. Our Lord Jesus Christ will have forever a human body and soul and when we see him in glory it will be "this same Jesus" who was received up from earth to heaven. His enthronement suggests the glorification possible for humanity. Our bodies are now in humiliation and grow weary and ill; but they shall be made like unto the body of his glory—wondrous thought!

Though now ascended up on high, He bends on earth a brother's eye; Partaker of the human name, He knows the frailty of our frame.

Our entrance to heaven is secured. Joseph's rude brothers were out of place in the palace of Pharaoh, but because Joseph was on the throne they were soon set at ease. Christ is not ashamed to call us brethren and we shall be "at home" with the Lord.

Our Mighty Helper.
The verse following the text reads, "And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following." Christ does not sit idly on his throne; but, as Stephen saw him "standing" on the right hand of God, he rises to help his people. The Gospels tell us what Jesus "began to do and teach," and he is still doing and teaching. If tempted to doubt whether the Lord is among us, let us recall how he shook Christendom by a miner's son, Martin Luther; and launched the modern missionary movement through a shoemaker, William Carey. "But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down on the right hand of God; from henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footstool" (Hebrews 10:12, 13). He shall come to reign at last. In that day, the church will share his glories as his own bride. Israel will be restored and be a channel of blessing to all nations. Wars and oppression will cease. "And the streets of his city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fawning together: and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice' den. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the seas" (Isaiah 11:6-9). A blind girl said she loved the Book of Revelation the best, and especially the last three chapters, since the twentieth shows Satan bound, the twenty-first shows the Lamb married and the twenty-second shows Christ reigning.

GOVERNMENT HAS MADE EXPERIMENTS

Effective and Inexpensive Methods of Controlling the Serious and Widespread Leaf-Spot Disease.

Leaf-spot, one of the most serious and widely distributed diseases of the sugar beet, can be controlled by a careful system of crop rotation and by deep fall plowing, according to recent investigations conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. By rotating both the tonnage and the sugar content of the beet the leaf-spot disease is a serious menace to the profits of beet growers. In addition, the disease lessens to a very appreciable extent the feeding value of the beet tops. Sugar beets are, of course, grown primarily for the money value of the roots, but the tops are an important part of the stock feed. A bad invasion of leaf-spot disease will reduce the feeding value of the tops at least 25 per cent. What this might amount to is indicated by the fact that the disease caused an average loss of 10 per cent in the value of the crop of beet tops, the loss to the country would amount to over $300,000 a year in this one item alone. The loss in sugar would, of course, be far greater.

To control the disease, the government investigators advocate first of all a proper system of crop rotation. This, indeed, is essential to good farming, and the fact that it is extremely important in fighting the disease is still another reason why it should receive the greatest attention from farmers. Certain pests like the fungus of the leaf-spot disease, can thrive only on certain kinds of plants. When their food supply is cut off by the planting of other crops, the pests must inevitably suffer. The fungus which causes leaf-spot disease cannot, for example, survive upon small grains, corn, clover, alfalfa, cowpeas, beans, and many other plants which are in other respects suitable for a rotation with sugar beets. Their use, therefore, will not only improve the land, but go far toward eliminating the pest. In the locality, for example, a system of crop rotation is employed in which beets follow corn, and here the leaf-spot has been stamped out to such an extent that it is no longer feared.

Where the disease has already obtained a firm footing, it is recommended that as much as two inches of soil be turned over between beet crops. The best results probably occur when three or even four years of other crops are provided for in rotation. No hard and fast rotation system is, therefore, in the bulletin which discusses the question, and which has just been published under the title of "Farmers' Bulletin No. 618, Leaf-Spot, a Disease of the Sugar Beet," for the authors say that the most profitable system must be worked out for each individual farm.

Deep fall plowing is another means of controlling leaf-spot. This is valuable chiefly when it is absolutely necessary to follow in infested land one crop of beets with another. Such cases occasionally arise and it will then be found that by plowing to a depth of fourteen inches or so the amount of the disease in the second crop can be materially reduced. To suppose, however, that deep fall plowing will take the place of a carefully planned rotation system would be a big mistake.

Still a third method of controlling the disease is spraying. It has been demonstrated repeatedly that leaf-spot may be controlled almost perfectly by the proper use of Bordeaux mixture. It is a question, however, whether the remedy in some cases is not more expensive than the disease. Local conditions must determine the answer. Government investigations indicate that for effective spraying at least $9.50 must be allowed an acre.

Assuming that there is a flat rate of $5 a ton for beets, the spraying must produce an increased yield of two tons in order to be profitable. As in the case of all work of this kind, more over, the spraying must be thoroughly done to be effective. When beets are grown on a commercial basis, therefore, it is probable that the simplest and most inexpensive method of fighting leaf-spot disease is the establishment of a rotation that will not necessitate growing a crop two years in succession in the same field; and if circumstances make this unavoidable, deep fall plowing is a most desirable precaution.

A careful farmer can also do much in the way of preventive measures. Many things contribute to the spread of the disease, such as wind, water, insects, and the passage of men and animals from diseased fields to those not yet infected. The wind, the water, and the insects are largely beyond the control of the grower, but he can in great measure at least keep the beet men from animals passing directly from an infected beet field into land that is to be used for beets the following year.

MILITARY AUTHORITY RULES OVER GERMANY

Iron Hand of Militarism Governs
Land, Overruling Civil Authority in Many Instances.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)
Berlin, Oct. 30.—To say that civil authority in Germany has everywhere given way to military government would be to overstate the case, and yet it is true that within its own field of affairs the military is not only absolute, but also at times inclined utterly to disregard even the highest state officials. This prevails to such an extent that passes, for instance, from the Minister of Foreign Affairs are only valid when some army officer is disposed to recognize them. The foreign correspondents left in Berlin have recently had occasion to witness the working of military government. The Foreign Office sent to them, unsolicited, an invitation to visit the war prisoners' detention barracks at Döberitz, some fifteen miles outside the capital. The newspapermen assembled at the time and place directed. With them were Captain Lochstein of the Imperial Admiralty and several high officials of the Foreign Office. The commandant of the military camp, an elderly general, approached the group and addressed them brusquely.

"Nobody will be admitted to see the prisoners," he said. "And as long as I am commandant here, the same rule will prevail."
He turned his back on the state officials and newspapermen and strode back to his room without a word of explanation. The fact that the visitors were present by invitation of the government made no difference to him.

The civil officials of Germany realize that the fact that the neutral nations are getting so little news from the German side is in some degree the fault of this lack of co-operation between the civil and the military officials. If the former could have their way, the foreign press service from Germany would be much more nearly complete, but they are blocked by this attitude of the army officials.

JOE JOHOLSKE HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGE

Following the plea of guilty entered by Joseph Joholske, the eighteen-year-old youth arrested yesterday for burglary, in the municipal court, the case was adjourned until Monday morning to allow Chief of Police Champion to make further investigation concerning other robberies alleged to have been committed by the gang, composed of Earl and William Wheelock, Raymond and Joseph Joholske and Albert Orban.

Chief Champion this morning refused to divulge what further evidence he had obtained or what other crimes the boys might have committed, but stated: "I expect to recover some jewelry that will connect the gang with several other 'jobs' done in this city in the past two years." A ring was recovered yesterday from William Wheelock that was identified as a part of the loot obtained from the Warner billiard hall on South Main street, which was robbed of merchandise of all kinds, including watches, pins, rings and pipes.

Joseph Joholske is the last of the five wanted by the police and was arrested late yesterday afternoon at the county jail, where he went to visit his brother, Raymond Joholske, who has been sentenced to two and a half years in the Green Bay reformatory. When the youth went to the county jail, he asked the turnkey to be allowed to go into the corridor, telling the jail authorities he was Albert Orban. His statement was known to be untrue and Officer Fred Albright arrested Joholske as he was coming out of the cell room. While the youth has been in the city for several days, the police made no attempt to arrest him. Chief champion having a reason for allowing him his liberty. He was arraigned before Judge H. L. Maxfield in the municipal court late yesterday afternoon on the charge of breaking into the store of Hansen and Smith at Milton, October 14, 1912. He pleaded guilty and waived his right to an examination, but was not sentenced, the court wishing to adjourn the case until this morning.

When brought into court at ten o'clock this morning, Joholske was questioned by Judge Maxfield and denied emphatically that he was guilty of any other offense other than the Milton robbery two years ago, when he with his cousin, Albert Orban, broke into the store and stole several guns. On the recommendation of Chief Champion, his case was adjourned until Monday, at ten o'clock.

Joholske escaped the police the morning the officers started to arrest the gang, running out of his home when they went to arrest his younger brother, Raymond. It was not known at that time that Joseph was connected, for no evidence was secured against him or Orban until the Wheelock youths told of their guilt while being "sweated" by Chief Champion.

AT THE MYERS THEATRE.

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE."

The announcement is made that "When Dreams Come True" one of the newest musical comedies, which had a great vogue in New York, and Chicago last season will be presented at the Myers Theatre, Tuesday, November 3, matinee and evening. The action of the play opens on board the immigrant deck of a steamship on its way to New York. The plot begins to unfold early and the music theme begins, when Frederic Santley, as Kean, Hedges, the Son of a multi-millionaire, who, on account of having become infatuated with a French dancer in Paris is recalled to Frederic Santley and Margaret Grae in the musical comedy of youth, "When Dreams Come True," at Myers Theatre, Tuesday, Nov. 3rd, matinee and night.

America by his father. Being short of funds he has had to take his passage home in the steerage of the ship and it is while he is lonely he sees, as he thinks in a vision, his dream girl. When the ship reaches the dock, the girl of the dream becomes a reality and romance runs merrily until the end. A number of tuneful songs are introduced, chief among them being: "Come Along to the Movies," "Love is Such a Funny Little Thing," "You, dear, You," "Who's the Little Girl?" and "When Dreams Come True." The scenic appointments are elaborate, and the costumes of the various members shows the very latest European fashions. The company numbers fifty people with a large singing and dancing contingent, selected for their youth, grace and ability. "When Dreams Come True," it is promised, will be one of the most enjoyable theatrical entertainments of our local season.

AT THE APOLLO.

"Girls of Bonnie Scotland" present refined musical comedy.

Good voices, a new wardrobe, clean comedy and a refined show are the offerings of Joe Edmunds and Gertrude Lang in "The Girls of Bonnie Scotland" at the Apollo last night. The large audience were well pleased yesterday and tonight promises capacity houses.

WHEN "PIGS IS PIGS" UP TO COMMERCE BODY.

Washington, Oct. 29.—"Pigs is Pigs," the comic tale recently popular, was vividly before the Interstate Commerce Commission and representatives of express companies when the Commission today opened hearings on new rules proposed, regulating packing and shipping of a widely miscellaneous list of merchandise.

How to ship guinea pigs was one of the questions before the Commission. Hasty transport of the animals is an imperative rule of the express companies.

Other questions involved in the hearings were:

Maximum weight limit for shipments of mice; standardizing value of opossums; how to pack duck eggs; protection of live crabs in shipment and treatment of shrimps (edible variety).

Regulations for shipping moving pictures were also before the commission.

---And the Worst is yet to Come

Jean McElroy at once charmed her hearers with her skillful and beautiful playing of the Sextette from Lucia on her harp. Her technical skill is well worthy of the repeated curtain calls.

Her Horton is cleaver personified in his clay modeling and crayon drawing. The Apollo has not been favored for some time with as good a bill as this which will continue until Sunday night.

Three more big photo play productions are announced for the first of next week.

"My Official Wife" Clara Kimball Young is featured in the Broadway Star Feature, "My Official Wife," a Vitaphone drama in 5 parts. This is one of the photo dramatic sensations of the season. In order to assist a beautiful nihilist, an American introduces her as his wife

"HARD TIMES" PARTY LAUGHING SPECTACLE

Disappointed Costumes Were Worn at Lakota Cluo Affair Last Night—Dance Only Waltz and Two-step.

With only the waltz and two-step in vogue, and with the phrase "signs of the hard times" fully carried out, twenty-five Lakota club members and their lady friends, clad in all sorts of disheveled raiment, danced merrily for four hours last night at the Terpsichorean hall. A "hard times" party was the name of the event, and all present came to the conclusion that it was a "hard times" affair, when each and every costume was first displayed. The barring of the new-laid dances was not discouraging even to a few, and when the evening passed, the fairly commenced, no thought was given to the tango, hesitation or one-step.

The ladies were much pleased with their attire, and the men, upon their arrival at the hall, were allowed to make use of the new club rooms as a reception room and a place to leave their wraps. Dancing commenced at 8 o'clock, and although part of the time was given over to the serving of sweet cider and pumpkin pie. When the pie was passed around, Francis Connors, an honored member of the club, called upon for a few selections at the piano. He relieved Roy Carter, another honorary member of the club, at the keys for a few minutes, and rendered several entertaining and humorous selections. Will Menzies played the traps for Mr. Carter during the dancing. Following is a list of those present.

Mrs. S. F. Richards, George Caldwell and Oscar Yahn, and the Misses Margaret Doty, Hazel Dougherty, Lucile Hyde, Ethel Walker, Edna Jones, Jessie Berry, Vera Wilcox, Gladys Rutter, Genevieve Preme, Laura Connell, Maude McDonald, Vera Lynt, Hilda Hammarlund, Clara Bierkness, Evelyn Walsh, Esie Koch, Grace Wilson, Marie Schwanke, Gertrude Cassidy, Clara Schwartz, Gertrude Preme and Ruth Sherman. The Lakotas were: Messrs. Dr. S. F. Richards, George Caldwell, Oscar Yahn, Howard Clithero, Edward McElroy, Ralph Soultman, George Sennett, Phelps Lee, William Eickman, Walter Alris, Frank Bumgarner, Carson Bumgarner, Percy Wilson, Walter Schenker, William Poelichen, Oscar Hammarlund, Peter Hammarlund, Charles Nove, Botious Kelly, John Brown, Leo Chase, Gus Baker, Louis McCarty, Claude Henriksen, Francis Connors, Roy Cummings, and Roy Carter.

CLEAN COMEDY AT "THE BLUE MOUSE"

Jack Bessey Stock Company Entertain Packed House With Clyde Fitch's Famous Comedy.

Myers Theatre was sold out again last evening by the excellent comedy appearance of the Jack Bessey Stock Comedy Company in a very good rendition of Clyde Fitch's famous comedy, "The Blue Mouse." Every member of the company shined in excellent form last night. The playlet is based on the ambition for advancement on a young man in the employ of a railroad. To obtain the coveted position of division superintendent he hires a notorious chorus girl, "The Blue Mouse," to gain favor for him with the president of the road. The situations which arise are of the most laughable sort, while the climax is so uproariously funny that one's sides ache afterwards from laughing so heartily. The Blue Mouse will appear again Sunday matinee.

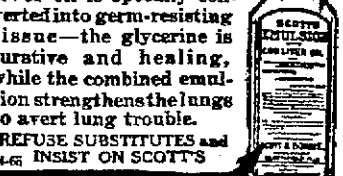

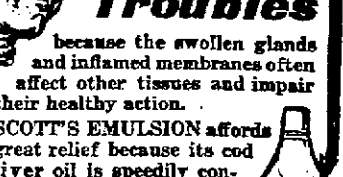

ROOSEVELT TO AID NEW JERSEY MOOS.

Trenton, Oct. 30.—In the interest of the Progressive candidates of the counties embracing the Fourth Congressional District, Col. Theodore Roosevelt is scheduled to arrive here this afternoon and address the voters of this city.

The Second Regiment Armory is to be the scene of the meeting and in view of the fact that this will be the first appearance of the Colonel in Trenton since 1912, it was anticipated this morning that a great throng of listeners would attend all parties, would turn out this afternoon to hear what he has to say.

National Geographic Society War Primer,

MARIANNE or LADRONES—A group of islands in the Pacific ocean, 1,350 miles east of the Philippines, of which all but Guam, owned by the United States, are German possessions. The name Ladrones, meaning thieves, was given to them by the sailors of Magellan, because of the inclination of the early natives to steal. Excluding Guam, there are fourteen islands, of which only seven are inhabited. Volcanoes are scattered over the ten northern islands, while the southern members of the group are coraline in structure and fringed with coral reefs. Their total area is about 250 square miles, and their population close to 4,000. Climate and soil lend themselves readily to agricultural pursuits, but the inhabitants have failed to realize their opportunities in this regard. Coffee, sugar, cotton, tobacco, cocoa, mother-of-pearls, sweet potatoes and coconuts are produced, and copra, the dried meat of the coconut, is exported. Germany paid Spain approximately $4,000,000 for the archipelago, with the exception of Guam, in 1899.

LA BRESSE—A village of northeastern France, beautifully situated in the valley of the Moselle. In the shadow of the Vosges mountains, it has remained practically unchanged for many years, its inhabitants doing their best to uphold the reputation of their forefathers as the best cheese and butter makers of the district. They are also skilled in wood-carving. Lower down on the river are several cotton mills. The place is twenty-two miles southeast of Epinal, and but four miles from the border of Alsace. MOUZON—A town of northern France which enjoyed some importance until 1860. It is on the Meuse, seven miles from the Belgian border and nineteen miles southeast of Mezières. Its ancient name was Mosonmagus. "Field of the Meuse." Nails, railway rolling stock and agricultural machinery are manufactured there by the more than 6,000 inhabitants. Here may be seen the remains of an abbey founded in the tenth century.

GERARDMER—One of the most beautifully situated of French towns, in the extreme northeast section of the republic, seven miles from the Alsatian border and twenty miles southeast of Epinal. Its location in the forested Vosges, near the much-visited Hohneck, the Schneck mountain pass and the defile of Granges, makes it the most popular summer resort in this part of France. It is the principal seat of the famous wood-carvers of the Vosges, and the hand-loom may be found in nearly every home in the town. In addition, the inhabitants are engaged in cloth weaving, bleaching, the sawing of wood and the manufacture of cheese. Gerardmer is located on a lake of the same name, at an altitude of 2,200 feet. It has a population of about 5,000.

BERRY-AUBAC—A village on a line between Laon and Reims in northern France, about eleven miles from the latter, on the Aisne river. It is near a branch of the Aisne and Marne canal. The town's activities are centered in its sugar factories. There is a legend that Caesar's army camped on a nearby plateau.

ARRAUX—A village of northern France, five miles northwest of Mezières and eight miles from the Belgian border, near a small affluent of the Sormonne, a tributary of the Meuse. The town has in the neighborhood of half a thousand inhabitants, many of whom operate nurseries. The place also supports an iron foundry.

SERETH—A town of extreme eastern Galicia, twenty-three miles south of Czernowitz, but a few miles from the Rumanian border on the Sereth river. Its population has more than doubled in the last half a century and now totals about 3,000. A large portion of its inhabitants are Jews. The town is very old and is an important horse market.

Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect, and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not gripe or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is therefore the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 450 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

DRAMATIC CLUB WILL FOLLOW A DEFINITE PROGRAM THIS YEAR

Program Committee Met Last Evening and Completed Outline for Work—Social Program Is Accepted.

Having decided at the regular meeting of the Janesville Dramatic society last Monday night, to have a definite program outlined for the year's work, the program committee, composed of Miss Mabel Greenman, chairman, and the Misses Buckmaster, Baker, Boomer and Messers, Oestreich, Doane and Fraunfelder, met last evening and arranged an outline which covers a wide scope of work. Mrs. J. B. Day, director, and President Hoffmeister, attended the session. In addition to regular papers, various subjects on dramatic art will be given at each weekly meeting by the members, the club decided to read six plays by picked casts, and to act out four one-act sketches before the members only, during the course of the year. Then in next May, the date having been set for the 19th, the club will present the big attraction of the year before the public, the production of the play "The Sign of the Cross" which has not been decided whether more than one production will be presented to the public this season. One will surely be staged, and more, the club can and members to spare time on the parts that they might be assigned to.

An outline handed the program committee by the social committee, which met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. A. Munn, was accepted in full. This outline calls for an entertainment of some sort once every month. On November 20th, the social functions will start with the Misses Louise Merrill, Marjorie Mount and Leora Westlake, as the three selected from the social committee to arrange the affair. December will be a one-act sketch entitled, "In Honor of the Soldier," written by the late Sidney Grundy, will be acted out by a select cast. There will probably be a social meeting in January. The date for the February event has not been decided as yet, although February 22nd looks to be as good as any. This month, "Dickens' Comedy" will be the big mid-winter attraction for the club members. This event will rival if not excel the novel immigration social held last winter. A tentative date, the 17th, has been set for March, although it is not definite whether there will be a social event during the month. The club, however, hopes to have such an evening at least once a month. On April 21st, an entertainment similar to the one outlined for February will be held. Then on May 13th, the big play of the year will be staged. The Misses Vera Lynt and Evelyn Welsh and Messrs. William Poenichen and Charles Naves will have charge of the entertainment for the month of March. At the meetings when no entertainment is given, the members will confine themselves to the reading of plays, and giving intense study on the drama. Various authors, actors and actresses of prominence will be reviewed.

The plays to be read during the season by picked parts, are as follows: "The House Next Door," by Manners; "Nowadays," by Middleton; "Fusties," by Galsworthy; "Disraeli," by Parker; "The Walls of Jericho," by Sutro; "The Pomander Walls," by Parker. Short one-act sketches to be given here the club by its members at meetings during the season were selected at the meeting last evening. They are, "Children," "Dressed Apart," "The Terrible Meek," and "Riders to the Sea."

MAKE ARRANGEMENTS TO JUDGE CONTEST

Roundup of Rock County Boys' Corn Growing Contest Is Scheduled for November 12.

(By A. B. West.)
The roundup of the boys' corn growing contest conducted by the Commercial Club is near at hand. The committee has fixed the date of the judging of the ten best ears Nov. 12. At this time announcement will be made of the prize winners in the contest and prizes awarded to the ten having highest record.

The Commercial Club are making arrangements to serve a dinner at which all the boys who have taken part in the contest and their parents will be guests of honor. This dinner will be served in the Y. M. C. A. building, where each boy will have on display his ten best ears of corn. It is expected that Prof. James and Prof. Bewick of the state college of agriculture will be present, also a representative from the home economics department. Miss Bailey of the domestic arts department of the city high school will also be present.

In the afternoon beginning about 1:30, addresses will be made by the representative of the college of agriculture on corn growing, home economics and kindred topics.

This meeting will be open to the public, and all interested in corn growing or household economics are most cordially invited to be present.

The corn on the contest acres is now being judged under the supervision of local representatives. Much of the judging has already been done, and it looks now as if the record of last year might be broken, and possibly the record of the state.

As those who raise one hundred bushels or more of corn to the acre are entitled to membership in the National Top Notch Club, there is likely to be a number who will be eligible as a result of this year's contest in Rock county.

The awards that will be made at the Y. M. C. A. building Thursday, Nov. 12, will be on the following basis:

Yield.....70 points
Report of raising.....10 points
Financial report.....10 points
Ten best ears.....10 points

It is hoped that there will be a large company present at the meeting on Nov. 12.

Ewes, inferior to choice.....3.10@5.40
Bucks, common to choice.....3.00@4.10

MONROE MAN DEAD IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Well Known Poultry and Green County Business Man Killed When Car Turns Turtle.

Monroe, Wis., Oct. 30.—Fred A. Dahms, proprietor of the Monroe Model Mill, and well known as a breeder of fancy poultry, died in the General Hospital at midnight last night, never regaining consciousness, following an automobile accident seven and one-half miles south of Orangeville at noon yesterday, when with two other Monroe men, F. Trukenbrod and John J. Schneider, he was thrown clear of his car when the left rear wheel gave way as he was attempting to turn the machine from a deep rut back in the road, and the car turned over. It is said it hurtled over twice, alighting right side up. Dahms' skull was fractured and he was paralyzed on one side. Trukenbrod's injuries were painful, but not considered serious, while Schneider was out about the face.

The party left at 10:30 for Freeport with Henry Davis, of that city, who had been here the day before for the Cheese Days celebration as the guest of Mr. Dahms.

The victim was 51 years old and is survived by his wife and six children. Mr. Trukenbrod is confined in the Freeport hospital.

FROSTS DO NO HARM TO CURING TOBACCO

Crop Entirely Out of Danger of Freezes. —T. E. Welsh Sells 500 Case Lot.

The first frosts of the season to mark vegetation have come during the week, but the great bulk of the tobacco crop is now so completely cured out that it is beyond the reach of even freezes that penetrate the sheds. There has been but very little of the crop stripped, and yet not much likelihood of its being done until the growers complete their other farm work.

No symptoms of a revival of the buying movement are visible to quote the representative of one of the larger concerns, "not a leaf stirring," quite conclusively states the situation at present.

Eastern journals report a fair sale of Wisconsin as samples appear on the market. T. E. Welsh of Janesville has sold a 5000s lot to a manufacturer and a 2000s lot of '13 sold by a local packer to a western jobber comprise the important transactions coming to notice.

The work of sampling last season's packings is not yet completed and where guaranteed inspection is required there is some reluctance to be done before clean tickets are received. —Edgerton Reporter.

The time passed pleasantly at games and a delicious supper was served. Those present were: Marie, Elizabeth and Ellis Newman, Levi and Donald Black, Arthur and Elmer Scholz, Clara and Bennie Dabson, Corrine and Pearl Gardner, Charlotte Campbell and Kent Liddell. Misses Alice Roberts and Rhody Sherman, teachers at the Adams school, were also among the guests.

CRAZY ALL RIGHT.

SHE—Well, they are. I tried it once and couldn't take a step for two weeks.

Proper Foot Coverings.

The medical man presents the moccasin as the most wholesome foot covering yet devised, but very few are sanguine enough to hope that fashion will permit its general use. Next to the moccasin, so we are told, is the shoe that not only permits the foot to perform its normal functions unimpeded, but strengthens it when in use. This is the shoe that, instead of plucking the foot or forcing it into abnormal shapes or positions, actually fits it.
